

Contribution ID: 123

Type: Poster contribution

Quantum technologies for lattice gauge theories

Friday, 21 April 2017 17:00 (1 hour)

Recently there have been a boost in the research activities related to quantum simulations: on the one hand, recent experimental results showed how the field is becoming mature to provide interesting simulations of many-body physics. On the other hand, following the original idea put forward by Feynman, it has become clear that quantum simulators could be applied to a long-standing problem, namely the study of lattice gauge theories in cases where standard lattice calculations are hindered by the sign problem, e.g. finite chemical potential and real-time evolutions.

Here, we review some of the latest developments in the field and report on recent theoretical proposals and numerical results which are exploring the path towards the quantum simulation of lattice gauge theories.

Primary author: Prof. MONTANGERO, Simone (Saarland University and Center for Integrated Quantum Science and Technologies)

Presenter: Prof. MONTANGERO, Simone (Saarland University and Center for Integrated Quantum Science and Technologies)

Session Classification: Archivio Poster

Track Classification: Sessione Nuove Tecnologie