Hi everybody!

I am a journalist/editor and programme host at the 1st Channel of Radio Slovenia.

After finishing my Bachelors in International Relations in Ljubljana, I followed my dreams and went to Canterbury, UK, where I finished Master of Science in Social and Applied Psychology.

I am passionately curious about world, people and their behaviour, cognition, group dynamics, languages, identities.

I am involved in different segments of our programme, working on the various topics, but I am especially proud of our weekly morning neuroscience show called “Možgani na dlani” (Brain at hand), which I started in 2015 and is now successfully approaching its 200th episode! As far as our brain is concerned, there’s of course never lack of questions, big projects and big perspectives.

I also like to look for and learn about innovative ways of how to bring (neuroscientific) stories closer to the public in a fresh radio format.

In my leisure time I love travelling, hiking, swimming, dancing and reading.

I am very much looking forward to meeting you all in Erice!
