

Rudi BRESSA

Hi everybody.

I'm a naturalist and scientific journalist.

After my bachelor, I studied environmental communication in Rome, back in 2006.

After that I had some internships on newsrooms and radio, where I start to work as a journalist. Today I write about renewable energies, climate change and sustainability, from nature conservation to circular economy.

I work with several national newspapers, like LaStampa, LifeGate, Renewable Matters, Vanity Fair, Corriere della Sera, Qualenergia, covering stories about environment and ecology.

I published as author a book series on circular economy. I'm sustainability consultant for companies and university spinoff.

I collaborated with national Ngo's to promote sustainable development.

Most of all, I care about this planet and try to live in a lighter and sustainable way.