

Sonal KATYAL

Hello, Namaste! My name is Sonal.

I started my journey in Science Communication with a masters in Science Communication and Public Engagement from the University of Edinburgh. I have had the opportunity to work for/volunteer at science centres, science shows and develop and deliver science workshops. I have developed and organised national public events for the India International Science Festival 2018 and even worked with science festivals in Scotland (including Edinburgh Science Festival). I love video production/editing and have enjoyed utilising this passion in SciComm (Genetic Engineering videos for the Roslin Institute). I have also hosted a science radio show (and an exploratory culture chat radio show) at my University.

I love talking about and learning new things about science, SciComm, arts and crafts, theatre, dance and the amalgamation of the mentioned for Public Engagement. I want to enhance my skills in science writing and other forms of science media and am eagerly looking forward to the Erice International School of Science Journalism.

Twitter Handle: @katyal_sonal