

International conference PUMA22 Probing the Universe with Multimessenger Astrophysics

Contribution ID: 79

Type: Oral contribution

Detecting long-duration gravitational wave signals

Tuesday, September 27, 2022 11:50 AM (20 minutes)

Spinning neutron stars are sources of long-duration continuous waves that may be detected by interferometric detectors.

We focus on long-duration (transient) signals of unknown duration and start time.

We present a new method to identify them.

Primary authors: FESIK, Liudmila (Max Planck Institute for Gravitational Physics (Hanover)); PAPA, Maria Alessandra (Max Planck Inst. for Gravitational Physics)

Presenter: FESIK, Liudmila (Max Planck Institute for Gravitational Physics (Hanover))

Session Classification: Session 3