The Low Level Measurement Techniques Working Group (LLRMT) of the International Committee for Radionuclide Metrology (ICRM) provides a platform for all ICRM members interested in the measurement of low levels of radioactivity in whatever area, but with a particular emphasis on environmental measurements. The Working Group facilitates the opportunity for radionuclide

Scroll down to the bottom of the page:

in addition we also plan three thematic sessions:

- Thematic session 1 - Studies of climate change
- Thematic session 2 - Emergency preparedness
- Thematic session 3 - Future ISO/CEN/IEC standards

Abstracts should be submitted through this website to the conference organizers before 30 November 2021. The template can be downloaded here.

These abstracts will be reviewed by the Scientific Committee and authors will be notified whether or not their abstracts have been accepted after 31 December 2021.

The proceedings of the conference will be published in Applied Radiation and Isotopes. The manuscripts, exclusively in English, will have to comply with the guidelines of the journal, which will be sent to the authors together with the information on the acceptance of the work. The acceptance of a work for presentation at the conference does not imply its publication in this journal. The publication of manuscripts will be subject to the result of a strict refereeing procedure.

At least one of the authors is to be expected to register at the conference, if the contribution will be accepted. If no author will be present the contribution will have to be cancelled.

For the manuscript to be considered for acceptance in Applied Radiation and Isotopes, at least one author must be present at the conference and present the paper as oral or poster.

Preliminary works of interest for the ICRM community could be accepted just for presentation as poster without publication.

To submit an abstract you must be registered on the INFN Indico. Here you can find detailed instructions on how to do so.
