

Reactor antineutrino analysis in JUNO

Wednesday, 16 October 2024 16:54 (1 minute)

The JUNO experiment is a detector composed of 20kton liquid scintillator. Its main goal is to determine the neutrino Mass Ordering in 6 years data-taking. To achieve this, it targets reactor antineutrino at a medium baseline. In this poster, a overview of the whole analysis workflow is presented.

Presenter: CHEN, Ze

Session Classification: Poster Session