

Abstract ID : 65

Emulating hadronic matter in extreme conditions

Content

Analogies are extremely powerful tools: they give the opportunity to look at physical phenomena from a different perspective. We show how dipolar ultracold atoms can be used to describe some properties of nuclear matter at extreme densities. In particular, the proposed approach allows to shed light on some physical process relevant for the evolution of neutron stars.

Primary author: MANNARELLI, Massimo (Istituto Nazionale di Fisica Nucleare)

Presenter: MANNARELLI, Massimo (Istituto Nazionale di Fisica Nucleare)

Status: SUBMITTED

Submitted by MANNARELLI, Massimo on Wednesday, 19 March 2025